VENTURA COUNTY'S MIXTECO/INDIGENA COMMUNITY ORGANIZING PROJECT

MICOP aids, organizes and empowers Ventura County's indigenous immigrant communities.

When MICOP began in 2001, Ventura County was barely aware of the county's growing indigenous Mexican farmworker population, estimated at 20,000 individuals (primarily Mixtec). There were no Mixteco interpreters or advocates.

Over the past 14 years, MICOP has become the trusted voice of the indigenous community and the respected partner of dozens of agencies seeking to provide needed services to indigenous farmworkers. Because of MICOP's efforts, indigenous immigrants are increasingly included at the county's decision-making tables and recognized for their strong contributions to the economic success and rich cultural life of Ventura County.

Indigenous leaders shape MICOP's vision and implement our programs. Our Board of Directors is 40% indigenous, and our 35-member staff is 90% indigenous, thus ensuring that the community leads MICOP's efforts. Nearly all staff members worked as farmworkers before dedicating hundreds of hours to MICOP trainings, learning to serve our community as organizers, interpreters, educators and case managers.

Together we meet community needs through our five program areas:

1. Increasing language access
2. Health and family strengthening
3. Ensuring educational advancement
4. Community organizing and youth leadership development
5. Cultural promotion

WELCOME TO NIGHT IN OAXACA

Join us for an evening of Oaxacan culture and cuisine, celebrating our youth scholarship recipients and supporting the work of MICOP. Over 350 distinguished guests attend this annual event, including community, government, business and indigenous leaders.

OAXACAN MOLE DINNER

RAISING OUR VOICE IN VENTURA COUNTY COMMUNITY

LANGUAGE ACCESS FOR DRIVER'S LICENSES:

MICOP's Indigenous Leadership Committee is working with elected officials and DMV representatives to achieve a Mixteco language driver's license test.

RADIO INDÍGENA:

We will raise our voice on our new radio station, 94.1 FM Radio Indigena. Listen for us on the dial!

RESPECT IS PEACE CURRICULUM:

MICOP staff and area artists will begin teaching our new indigenous studies curriculum to elementary school students throughout the county.

PROMOTING HEALTH AND WELLNESS:

Indigenous promotores educate the community about preventive health practices and women's and men's mental health. MICOP advocates for farmworker access to health care.

FIELDS TO COLLEGE CAMPAIGN:

MICOP's Tequio Youth Group provides presentations to farmworker parents directly in the fields, teaching them about how to help their children achieve a college education.

STRENGTHENING INDIGENOUS FAMILIES:

Mixteco- and Zapoteco-speaking families learn parenting strategies and receive language support from MICOP's case managers based in First Five centers.
